Winning a Bride.

'So Lee Victor has gone to Texas, has he? Expects to make a fortune, no doubt, but it's my opinion he would have done better at home than out in that barbarous country. The ties here weren't sufficient to hold him, it seems.'

A flush, like the hue of a wild rose, crept over Blanche Corell's pretty blonde face.

'Oh, mother!' she said, protestingly.

'Oh, of course, you believe in him, and trust him,' continued Mrs. Corell, meanwhile plying her needle; 'but in my day men didn't prove their devotion in that way. If they wanted to marry a girl they married her, and when they went on their travels the wife went too. Lee is not a poor man; he has more than enough to give a girl a good home, but he was always a wild lad, fonder of sensations and adventures than home pleasures. It's a pity, Blanche, you ever favored him. Now, there's Dudley—'

'He has gone to Texas, too,' interrupted Blanche, demurely.

'Yes, but to keep a watch on Lee, I'll warrant. You know it was old Mr. Victor's notion, and Dudley Mesroe has a great deal of influence ove Lee. He will keep him in the right path if anybody can.'

'I think Lee is capable of being his own master,' said Blanche, with a little flash in her gentian-blue eyes, 'and he is worthy a score of Dudley Mesroles.'

Mrs. Corell wisely refrained from pursuing the subject, but the regret that often stirred her anxious heart moved her now.

From her infancy Blanche had found a firm friend and defender in Lee Victor; as time passed the affection between them assumed a new guise, deeper and sweeter, and then it was that the mother's fears began.

The handsome young man, with his careless, debonair way and restless nature, pleased her far less than his associate, whose gentle dignity and air of content won her favor at their first meeting.

In all outward seeming Dudley Mesrole was loyal to his friend, but a chance word, a glance from the quiet, brown eyes, proved to Blanche the regard in which he held her. The night of their parting he had told her the truth.

'I'm going away,' he said. 'I may never see you again, Blanche, for I shall not return with Lee. Your heart is in his keeping, and while I wish you both complete joy, I could not live here and witness all the happiness I have missed. Good-bye, forever.'

Twelve months went by. Letters from her lover were frequent, and he wrote in glowing terms of his life and luck in the far south west.

At last two weeks went by without the usual missives.

Blanche, fearing her lover might have grown ill, wrote a solicitous letter, but there came no reply; then in her anxiety she wrote to Dudley.

Another fortnight passed. She was standing on the cottage porch one day at sunset, when a tall figure in a gray traveling suit came up the walk.

Blanche sprung forward with a pallor on her face, and her lovely eyes dark with something akin to fear.

'Dudley Mesrole, and alone!' she cried. Tell me—Lee——'

He took her outstretched hands and looked down into her face with a pitying expression on his own.

'Lee is safe,' he answered; but there was a strange intonation in his low voice. 'Let us go in, Blanche, I have much to say to you.'

She led the way to the little cottage parlor and sat beside him while he told his story.

Lee Victor was false; he had wedded a girl from San Antonia, and Dudley had come to break the news to her.

Like a statue she sat, rigid and silent, while that soft, musical voice related the tale of treachery in a protesting reluctant way, and those gentle hands held her own in a friendly clasp, and those regretful brown eyes looked down into the blue ones that were dark with anguish.

'I would have spared you this,' said Dudley, 'but is it not best that you should know?'

'Yes, yes,' she murmured. 'You were always my friend, Dudley.'

He smiled half sadly, and then went away leaving her alone with her sorrow.

On the morrow he came again, and the welcome accorded him by Mrs Correl was more ardent though scarcely less sincere than that of Blanche.

In the new grief that had fallen upon her, she seemed to turn to him for sympathy and solace, and in the days that followed they were nearer each other in spirit than they had ever been before Blanche had never appreciated him as she did now.

It was with a deep sense of regret she heard of his intended departure.

'My uncle has offered me a position in Calcutta, and I have accepted,' said Dudley. 'I thought our last parting was final, Blanche; I tried to be reconciled then, but now—I have lost courage, these few weeks in your presence have unmanned me.'

'And they have taught me the value of a true friend,' she answered, with downcast eyes. 'I shall miss you more than ever, Dudley.'

A light gleamed in his eyes. He drew nearer and held out his hands.

'Come with me, Blanche. I have loved you long and faithfully. I will make you happy—only trust me.'

She looked away with troubled gaze.

'I do not love you Dudley,' she breathed. 'Not—not as I loved him.'

'Love will come with time,' he urged. 'My life is worth nothing to me without the brightness of your presence to clear it. Will you condemn me to a life of darkness, Blanche? Must my love be forever unrequited?'

Partly out of pity for him, partly because she had found his companionship so pleasant, Blanche yielded to his entreaties.

It was necessary that Dudley should take an early departure. Within a week from the time he had gained Blanche's consent, an announcement of the marriage was made in the village church, the ceremony to ensue two days later.

It was a calm, clear April day. In her simple robes of white, with the misty veil falling from her golden braids, half concealing the fair face beneath, Blanche stood at the altar beside the man to whom so soon she would be bound forever and aye.

The sacred rites begin. Through the deep silence that prevailed in the place, the solemn words sounded clear and distinct, and Blanche listened with an icy chill at her heart.

Then her dark eyes upraising saw, over the throng of watching faces, one that made her pulse thrill, a white, haggard face, with heavy, reproachful eyes, the face of her old lover.

Her brain whirled, she took a step forward unsteadily, and threw out her arms.

'Lee!' she cried aloud, and fell prostrate.

The light gossamer veil floated aside, and her face shone fair and pale in the bright sunshine.

Dudley, bending over her, felt a strong hand thrust him aside, and a low voice breathed:

Do not touch her! I know now you have played me false. She is mine, Dudley Mesrole.'

When Blanche returned to consciousness, Lee Victor told his story.

'I have been ill,' he said; so ill, Blanche, that even my physicians gave up all hopes of my recovery. Dudley Mesrole was with me at the first. I dictated letters to you and my father which he wrote, but he must have destroyed them afterward, for not one reached its destination. Then, while I lay at Death's door, he left me and came here. The rest you know. He hoped to wed you and take you with him to foreign shores before I returned and discovered his treachery. A merciful providence brought me back to day. Blanche—do you love me yet?'

'More than ever, dear,' she murmured.

It was a fortnight later that Blanche again stood at the altar, and heard the words that were now welcome to her, Lee Victor had won his bride.

His false friend was not among the guests. Thirteen days ago he had begun his journey to Calcutta.

In Another Man's Business.

A young man came into the car groping through the aisle for a seat. His left eye was covered with a red handkerchief and his right was swollen nearly shut. A white handkerchief, now blood soaked, was around his head, tied under his chin. He limped in one leg and didn't feel well in the other.

"I say," said an inquisitive passenger, "been in a railroad accident?"

"Naw."

Here was a brief pause, and then the inquiry:

"Runaway?'

"Naw."

Another pause, but finally the query.

"Base ball?"

"Naw."

"Well, I say, exclaimed the inquisitive passenger, warmly, "will you be kind enough to tell me how in the world you did get banged up in that style?"

"Certainly, sir, "replied the afflicted individual, swinging his right arm around quite vigorously and displaying a big muscle, "certainly, sir, certainly. I tried to stick my nose into another man's business."

HUMILIATED COWBOYS.

The Lesson That Was Taught Them by an Unobtrusive 'Tenderfoot.

There have been a great many stories told of the reckless daring and abandon of the cowboy. He is an American production, and at the sound of the word cowboy the mind reverts to some western locality where law and order are unknown, and are supplied by a rude set of conventionalities, the non-observance of which means violence without process of trial. The typical cowboy must be fearless, ready to shoot at a moment's warning, wild in his make-up and language, and ready to perpetrate a joke on a "tenderfoot" at any time.

But there is often considerable braggadocia in the cowboy, and a good illustration of this fact was told a Sentinel reporter by a station agent, who had lived in the west for many years and had been in the employ of various railroads in localities where cowboys were numerous.

"I have seen a good many daring deeds performed and coarse jokes perpetrated by cowboys," said the agent, "but I will tell you of a little incident where the wind was taken out of three cowboys by a determined, fearless 'tenderfoot.' It happened only last spring. I was then station agent and telegraph operator for the Northern Pacific Railroad company at a place near the Montana line. It was not much of a place, as it consisted only of a depot, a house or two, and a saloon.

"One morning a traveling man arrived at the depot by stage from up north somewhere. He had a small sample-case and satchel. He was below medium height and rather slight, but was very neatly dressed and wore a silk hat. He was traveling for a New York jewelry house. He was about an hour early for the train east, and he opened his grip on the platform, took out a brush, and dusted his clothing and shoes. He then drew out an old newspaper, leaned up against the side of the depot with one foot projected in front of the other, and began reading.

"Meanwhile, however, three cowboys had sauntered up to the depot. They all eyed him closely and watched his operations. When he began reading they huddled together and talked awhile in an undertone. Presently one of them—a big six-footer—left the group and began to saunter carelessly about the platform with his head in the air inspecting the posters on the building and the cornice. When he got around where the traveling man stood, he lifted his big brogan and planted it firmly on the jewelry man's foot. No apology was made. The traveling man merely looked up, drew his foot back a moment, then placed it back where it was. The cowboy passed back to the other two. They all chuckled and joined in a low-toned conversation.

"Soon the cowboy started out again on a similar round, gaping at the roof. When he reached the traveling man he tried to bring down his course boot on the extended foot. The traveling man jerked his foot back suddenly, and the brogan came down with a thump on the platform. Another conference and chuckling followed. Finally the cowboy set out on the third round. Just as he was about to raise his foot to plant it on that of the traveling man, the latter looked up quickly and said:

"'See here, there is my foot, and it's going to stay there. You step on it if you want to, but I want to tell you that before you can get off I will kill you.'

"Such a volley staggered the cowboy. He looked at the foot, and then at the small possessor, and finally moved off without stepping on it. Another consultation followed.

"The traveling man calmly read his paper a few minutes, and then took from his satchel three apples. He looked at them a moment, and suddenly threw them a few feet into the air and then quickly drew a revolver, fired three shots, splitting each apple into a dozen pieces before they reached the ground. He replaced the cartridges in the empty chambers of the revolver, and returned it to his pocket.

"The cowboys witnessed the act without saying a word, and soon, completely cowed, turned and left the depot. The traveling man told me after they left that he would have killed the three of them had the fellow stepped on his foot again, and I think he would, as he was quick as lightning. He then showed me a medal he carried, which he won as being the most rapid-and one of the best shots in New York. The story simply illustrates that there is sometimes a great deal of fictitious valor and daring about the cowboy."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

SPEAKING about hats, said a lawyer, reminds me of an incident that happened several years ago, when I was living at a fashionable house, in a leading city. It was rather a high-toned place and contained among its members as fine a lot of young ladies and gentlemen as you would care to meet. Well, one day in midsummer—and it was a terrible hot day, too—while we were all down at dinner, a man entered the hall door, which was standing open, and gathering up the hats on the rack in a pile—there was about thirty of them, and some fine ones, too—he started down the steps. Before he reached the sidewalk he met a salesman who was a little late for dinner, and who asked him what he was doing with all those hats. "Why," said the fellow, "I'm a hat dealer just around the corner, and am going to clean those hats while the gentlemen are at dinner." 'All right,' replied the salesman, "take mine along, and clean it up, too." There was soon the biggest crowd of bare-headed clerks in the house you ever saw. And the one who saw the rascal lugging the hats all off, and helped him, too, by giving him his own hat—well we nearly thumped the life out of him.

A Professional Engineer.

The Result of Monkeying with a Boiler by a Greenhorn.

"I don't want to pass through another such a season as the one through which I have just passed," said Dan Parkright, the actor.

"Have had a hard time, eh?" some one replied.

"Yes, about as tough a time as a white man cares to see. Our company went to pieces in Texarkana. Having done some little work in a newspaper way, I decided to play journalist until times got better, but, sir, I couldn't get a place. I offered to work for my board, but no, I couldn't get in. After awhile, giving up the journalistic idea, I struck out afoot. I wanted to avoid the regular lines of travel so that my chances for getting something to eat would be better, consequently I went through the country. Houses were few, and I came very nearly starving to death. One day I came upon a small saw mill, situated in a dense forest. I stopped and just as I was about to ask for something to eat, a man—who I soon discovered owned the mill—turned to me and asked:

"'Do you understand this business?'

"Ah, a chance for work. 'Yes, sir', I replied, 'I am well acquainted with it.'

"'Know anything about running an engine?'

"'Oh, yes, it's my business.'

"'Well, I'm mighty glad to see you. My engineer quit me yesterday, and I can give you regular employment. What will you work for?'

"'Two dollars a day.'

"'That's pretty steep, but as you are a professional engineer I reckon you are worth it. Come in and have some dinner, and then you may go to work.'

"I went in and proceeded to devour his dinner. I was a trifle nervous in view of my coming responsibility, and I tried to think of everything I had read applicable to machinery. I knew how to start the thing and I knew how to stop it, but that was about all. After dinner I boldly walked up, and when everything was in readiness, turned the little hot wheel. Away she went. One of the hands, an old negro, remarked to some one who stood near him: 'Dat white man un'erstan's his business, sho's yer borne, he do.' I was getting along finely, and I saw that the proprietor was pleased. A spring of cold water gushed out of the ground a short distance from the mill. I went down to get a drink. Just as I stooped down an awful jar shook the earth. My gracions! the mill's boiler had exploded. The proprietor, who escaped unhurt, rushed at me with dangerous fury. I thought that I would cool him off with a pleasant remark, and I said to him:

"'Hold on, Cap'n why didn't you tell me the thing was loaded?'

"The pleasant remark was a failure, for I saw that he could not take a joke. He rushed into a shanty, brought out a Winchester rifle and shot at me as long as I was in the neighborhood. The firing, I think, stopped about sundown that evening. I was glad when I came to the mill, but I was a great sight gladder when I got away."—Arkansaw Traveler.

THERE is a clock at Brussels which comes about as near being a perpetual motion machine as can be invented, for the sun does the winding. A shaft exposed to the solar rays causes an updraught of air which sets the fan in motion. The fan actuates mechanism which raises the weight of the clock until it reaches the top, and then puts a break on the fan until the weight has gone down a little, when the fan is again liberated and proceeds to act as before. As long as the sun shines frequantly enough, and the machinery does not wear out, the clock is practically a perpetual motion machine.

So Hateful With a Rifle.

Arkansaw Traveller.]

Minnie Sackmeyer, only daughter of old Hudspeth Sackmeyer, was said by every one to be the handsomest girl in Moffet county, Arkansaw. The old man though he loved a 10-cent piece with painful ardor, sent Minnie to a boarding-school where she received a liberal education. Shortly after returning home, she became acquainted with Harvey Watson, a young lawyer. This acquaintance so pleasantly begun skipped friendship and bounded into love. They became engaged. Watson had no idea the old man would oppose him, but he soon learned that he had lightly estimated the old fellow's character.

"Mr. Sackmeyer," said the lawyer, meeting the old man in the field, "I suppose you have noticed the attachment which has sprung up between your daughter and myself."

"What!" exclaimed the old man, throwing down his hoe and starting at the lawyer. "No, sir, I haven't noticed any such a blamed thing, and I don't want to notice it, nuther, let me tell you."

"Why, my dear sir, I did not think that you would object to our marriage."

"I don't object to yourn, but I don't 'low that you shall marry my daughter. I didn't spend so much money on her education to have her fling herself away."

"You don't know what you are talking about," replied Watson. "I stand high at the bar, even if I do say so myself. I have an income more than sufficient for the support of a wife."

"Oh, you ken blow your own ho'n, I ken see that, but I don't kere how much money you ken make. It don't take away the fact that you air a lawyer. My daughter shall never marry a lawyer, I can tell you."

"What have you against lawyers?"

"The back o' my hand, that's what."

"What is your reason?"

"Reason enough. A confounded lawyer tuck a case agin me some time ago an' beat me outer the best steer I ever seed."

"I have nothing to do with that, Mr. Sackmeyer. You cannot condemn all lawyers for a wrong which you fancy ——"

"Fancy thunderation! Don't I know when a man does me a mean trick? Don't I know when he works agin me?"

"So you declare that I shall not marry your daughter."

"Wus than that. I swear it."

"Suppose we marry anyway."

"If you do, it won't be good for you. I'd follow you to the end of the world to git a shot at you, an' I'm awful with a rifle, the neighbors say."

Watson turned away. He loved the girl, but he did not want the old man to get a shot at him. He doubted not but that the girl would run away with him, but ne could not afford to leave a business, which, to build up had required years of hard work. He went to the house. Minnie, with anxious face and an ill-at-ease manner, met him at the door.

"What did he say, Harvey?"

"Said that we should not marry."

"Oh, how hateful; but, precious, can we not run away?"

"Yes, we could run away, but——"

"But what?"

"Well, you see, I hinted something of the kind, and he said that if we did he would follow me to the end of the world to get a shot at me."

"Oh, how hateful."

"Do you suppose that he would do it?"

"Yes, precious, he would shoot the top of your head off. He's awful hateful with a rifle."

"I think," said the lawyer after a few moments of perplexed meditation, "that we'd better worry along with him a while. Perhaps we may gain his consent."

"Yes, that will be the best. Remember that I would run off with you in a minute if he wasn't so awful hateful with a rifle."

Several weeks afterward, Watson won a large railroad case. The report that he had received a fee of $5,000 was circulated throughout the country. Hoping that Sackmeyer had heard of the decision and that it might have influenced him, Watson hurried to the farm. He found Minnie in a state of happy expectancy. She knew that her father could no longer oppose the marriage. Watson went out into the field where the old man was at work.

"How do you do, Mr. Sackmeyer?"

"Middlin'; how is it with yourself?"

"First rate. I suppose you heard of my recent success?"

"Yes."

"Do you still object to our marriage?"

"Yas. Don't kere if you wuster gain a hundred cases, you shouldn't have her."

Angered beyond expression, disgusted and humiliated, Watson went to the house. Minnie met him at the gate.

"What did pa say?"

"Said no, confound him."

"Oh, how hateful. Did he say anything about shooting?"

"No, but I believe that he would."

"Oh, yes, he would, and he is awful hateful with a rifle. What shall we do?"

"Worry along with him. It it wasn't for the rifle, Minnie, I——"

"Oh, yes, the rifle; and he's so hateful with it, too."

A month passed. One day while the lawyer was riding along the road, he came upon old man Sackmeyer. The old man wore a look of despair. His team had stalled. The old fellow swore. He raved. Watson dismounted, took the lead horse by the bridle and lead the team out of the quagmire. The old man was delighted.

"Watson," said he, "nobody but the old man what has been thar knows what it is to have a team stalled. Take the gal. Take her, fur you have won her. You aire a able man. Talk about bein' a lawyer."

Minnie's face beamed with happiness when Watson conveyed to her the joyous intelligence.

"I'm so glad," she said, "that we won't have to run away, for pa is awful hateful with a rifle."

An Item for the Ladies.

FOR all dinners, says Harper's Bazaar, there is entirely a new departure in the way of decorating the table. All the flowers are put on in high vases, so that the guests can look underneath the flowers. The Carlsbad beer glasses, called "schooners," are very much used to hold the high-waving bouquets. The elaborate dinner cards are all gone out, and a plain card stamped with the monogram of the hostess alone marks the place where the guest is to sit. A menu is placed for the host or hostess on a little porcelain slate held up by a bracket, but that is the only one on the table. For both ladies, and gentlemen's dinners the same arrangement of wine obtains, except that at the former sherry and bitters are not offered. It is only fair to say that scarcely any of this wine is drunk by ladies, therefore it seems ostentatious to serve it so freely Two soups, white and clear, will be passed, and two kinds of fish, to give each guest a choice. An old fashion is being revived of bringing in the roast on a silver platter, the host carving. Silver dishes are used for the vegetables and for the salads, but not to eat from; there is something unpleasant in cutting anything on a silver dish. The finest of Derby ware or porcelain should be used for the plates. Cut glass is very much in fashion for the ornamental dishes of the table. We hear many inquiries as to the propriety of buying the colored glass now in fashion for the table. It is very pretty, but one may grow tired of it. Some of it is too gaudy for taste. For ladies' lunches also a truce has been sounded to the expensive decorations of dinner cards, painted ribbons and bags for bonbons. The menu also has been simplified. Chops with peas, a spannish omelet (a delicious dish this), birds broiled, fried potatoes, mushrooms on toast, artichokes, salads, champagne, coffee and fruit; this is now deemed a very stylish lunch for ladies, and is not overloaded. Roasted almonds, salted, make a very good relish after the sweets.

Plenty of Stocks, but no Cigars.

The stranger who hails from the East and has the odor of wealth about him no sooner registers at a hotel in Virginia City than he is approached by a pale faced, intellectual gentleman with downcast eyes, who observes:

"Perhaps you are looking an investment? Shares in the Great Colorado Irrigation Company are bound to advance twenty per cent. inside of a month. Chance to clear $50,000 in six weeks."

"Don't want any."

"Then you might have your pick of stocks in fifty-six silver mines, fourteen new banks, five new railroads, two navigation companies, five oil wells, six canal companies and twenty-one proposed new cities. Sure to double your money in four weeks."

"Don't want any."

"Then, stranger, for heaven's sake lend me a dollar! I haven't had a decent cigar nor a square meal since I can remember. Don't come out here to be a burden on the county."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken by your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant ao the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

THE Republicans in the Senate, instead of making the best possible choice among the three men who were mentioned for the office of President of that body, made the very worst in selecting Sherman. It's endorcing the bloody-shirt policy.

THE NEW TAX LAW is hardest on those who have money on interest. As long as people draw interest from a capital invested in any wise, they must pay a tax on that capital. Would a man have a clear conscience he must state to the assessor truthfully and upon his oath the full amount of moneys bearing interest.

EX-VICE-PRESIDENT Wheeler had the good sense to remain away from the burial of Hendricks and showed much more discretion than Hayes. He remembered the great fraud of 1876 and no doubt a feeling of shame kept him away. But it seemed R. B. Hayes, the very man who stole the place which rightfully belonged to Hendricks, had no shame and boldly presented himself at his funeral.

SENATE and HOUSE.

Sherman Selected by the Republican Senatorial Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Upon the meeting of the caucus of the Republican Senators yesterday a motion was made that the caucus proceed to ballot for President of the Senate. Upon the ballot being taken Mr. Sherman received all the votes, and upon a motion of Mr. Edmunds the nomination was made unanimous.

Carlisle Renominated for Speaker.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—One hundred and seventy-eight out of the 184 Democratic Representatives met at the capitol last night and, after chosing J. Randolph Tucker, of Virginia, Chairman, and Messrs. Beach and Breckenridge Secretaries, selected the officers of the House during the Forty-ninth Congress.

Mr. Carlisle was nominated for speaker unanimously and by acclamation, his name being presented by Mr. Willis and Mr. Randall.

WASHINGTON, Dec.7.—The Senators were promptly on hand this morning. Promptly at noon General McCook, Secretary of the Senate, called the body to order, and prayer was offered by the Chaplain, Rev. Dr. Huntley.

Mr. Edmunds offered a resolution declaring Senator John Sherman the President pro tempore of the Senate.

Mr. Vorhees moved an amendment to strike out the name of John Sherman and insert instead the name of Senator Isham G. Harris.

The amendment was voted down by a party vote—yeas, 29; nays, 34—and Mr. Sherman was, without division, declared duly elected President pro tempore.

THE HOUSE.

Organization of the Lower Branch of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—At precisely noon the House was called to order by J. B. Clark, its Clerk, and the first session of the Forty-ninth Congress began.

When order was secured the Clerk proceeded to call the roll of members-elect.

Nominations for Speaker were then in order, and Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, was recognized, who presented the name of John Griffith Carlisle, of Kentucky.

Messrs. Hiscock, of New York, and Cannon, of Illinois, then rose, but the latter was recognized, and placed Thos. B. Reed, of Maine, in nomination. Messrs. Morrison, of Illinois; Tucker, of Virginia; Hiscock; of New York, and Browne, of Indiana, were appointed Tellers to count the vote, which was immediately proceeded with.

The result was announced as follows: For Carlisle, 177; for Reed, 138, and, amid loud applause, the Clerk declared Mr. Carlisle elected, and appointed Messrs. Tucker and Reed as a committee to conduct the Speaker to the chair.

After the routine work of organization the house adjourned out of respect to the dead Vice President.

Carlisle and His Committees.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Speaker Carlisle to-day stated that he had made no attempt to select the members for the various committees of the House of Representatives, and would not do so until the question of revising the rules had been settled.

Ex-Senator Trumbull on the Senate Presidency.

Chicago Dispatch to New York World.

Speaking of the Vice Presidential succession, Ex-Senator Lyman Trumbull (Democrat) said to-night: "In the case of the death of the Vice President, the Senate elects a President, who is not a Vice President, but simply President of the Senate. He still remains a Senator and has a vote as any other Senator. The Vice President has no vote except when the Senate is evenly divided. Then he can give a casting vote. In case of the death of the President a Vice President succeeds to the Presidency and fills out the term. A President of the Senate, in case of the President's death, would only act as President until a new election could be held. The President of the Senate, by courtesy, is often spoken of as Vice President, but he is not Vice President, either in law or fact. I have no opinion as to who should be elected President of the Senate, but propriety would require the election of some Senator who was in accord with the party who elected the deceased Vice President."

A Testament Characteristic of the Man.

INDINAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 3.—The will of the late Vice-President Thomas A. Hendricks was probated this afternoon. It is in Hendricks' writing and the paper is yellow with age. It reads as follows:

I, Thomas A. Hendricks, of Marion County, Indiana, do make this last will and testament, hereby revoking any and all wills by me at any time heretofore made. I give, bequeath and devise to my beloved wife, Eliza C. Hendricks, all my personal and real property of every description whatsoever and wherever located. Also all my rights, claims, choses in action, and in fee simple to have and to hold the same to her and her heirs. In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand. And if agreeable to her, I desire that she shall be executrix thereof.

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS.

Signed and delivered in our presence and attested to by us in the presence of the testator and in the presence of each other at his request.

Another Acquisition for Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has purchased the Philadelphia Midland Railroad, and it is said will complete it to West Chester.

The reason why Arnica & Oil Liniment is so popular with the ladies is because it not only is very healing and soothing but its odor is not at all offensive.

Application will soon be made for the incorporation of a company to lease lands and mine coal in the bituminous region of Clearfield, Center, Blair, Cambria and Jefferson counties. The company is to be composed of large capitalists who will fully develop that important bituminous region.

It is in order now for every manufacturer to praise and extol the virtues of his cough medicine, and claim it ever so much better than any other. On square business principles the proprietor of Dr Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine says if you are not satisfied with the relief and benefit obtained, if you do not consider it well worth the price paid for it, then take the empty bottle back to your dealer and get your money.

The Price of Iron Going Up.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec.—The iron dealers report an advance of $1 on pig metal and 50 cents on ore within the past twenty-four hours. Business in this city is reported as good. The mills are booking plenty of orders at present, and through the use and economy of natural gas have decided advantage over the trade in general outside of Western Pennsylvania.

Will sensations never cease? It now leaks out through the confession of one of the Clarion County counterfeiters in the Pittsburg penitentiary, that the silver used in the manufacture of dollars, half-dollars, and quarters by the Boston Buck gang was dug from a mine on the farm of ex-Judge Sutton. An examination of the property has been made, and the story is fully confirmed. Silver of a splendid quality has been found in quantities to warrant the formation of a company, and mining operations will be commenced in a short time.

Brutality of a Teacher.

NUMIDIA, Pa., Dec. 3.—The teacher of the District School, a young man named Trahes, son of a minister at Bloomsburg, is charged with placing a corncob in the mouths of refractory scholars and compelling them to stand on the floor with it in their mouths for various periods. His last victim was a child of a farmer named George Snyder. When the cob was removed the end was covered with blood, and the child was so weak from exhaustion as to be unable to move. When Farmer Snyder was informed of this treatment his anger was almost uncontrollable. The matter was at once brought to the attention of the Directors, and a meeting will be held by them to investigate the charges.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.—Whereas there is a general opinion prevailing among the taxpayers throughout the county that because a collector's warrant is good for two years, they have the same length of time in which to pay their taxes. Tax Collectors frequenty complain to us that many persons make this a pretext for refusing to pay their taxes until they are actually forced to do so, and these being generally such as are best abe to pay. We therefore submit for your information the following Act of Assembly of April 15, 1834, in relation thereto:

"Every collector shall, within three months after receiving the corrected duplicate, pay into the hands of the treasurer of the property, county or township, as the case may be, the whole amount of the taxes charged and assessed in such duplicate, excepting such sum as the Commissioners, or supervisors and Overseers, as the case may be, in their discretion, may exhonerate him from, on pain of being answerable for and charged with the whole balance remaining so unpaid."

You will readily see by the above Act that tax collectors are required to pay in the full amount of their duplicates within three months after the duplicates are placed in their hands

LOTS GIVEN AWAY!

Palma Sola, Florida.

The paradise of invalids! The home of tropical fruits! Climate unsurpassed! No frost! No extremes of heat or cold! No malaria! Ground is high and dry! Plenty of pine! and the finest hunting and fishing in America.

PALMA SOLA has the name of being the largest, prettiest and youngest town in Florida, is beautifully located on the Gulf Coast, two miles above the mouth of the Manatee River. Already the iron horse is wending its way to Palma Sola, and the tourist will arrive at its first-class hotel, where he can get a meal to suit his epicurean tastes.

Palma Sola possesses the largest store in Southern Florida, with sawmill, furniture manufactory, packing houses, warehouses, churches, school house, postoffice, stores, beautiful residences, and a large wharf at which ocean steamers arrive daily from Tampa.

WARREN LELAND, Jr., of "Long Branch" fame, has secured a location at Palma Sola, for the erection of a winter resort. The prediction is a safe one, based as it is upon the natural advantages and attractions of the place, that he will make this the "LONG BRANCH" of FLORIDA, and other large hotels will be built.

With the completion of the railroad, this will be the terminus, and the direct route to Havana, Cuba. Lots will double and quadruple their prices. NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY.

LOTS 100 x 300 ft. $45 to $100 PER LOT. We want PALMA SOLA to keep booming, and as an inducement to the public, and to thoroughly advertise the beautiful place, WE WILL GIVE AWAY a LIMITED number ONLY of our lots, giving lots ALTERNATELY as they come [corners excepted] charging applicants the expenses of deed, transfer, etc., which will not exceed $2.00. Applicants can send postal money order with application to insure promptness, otherwise deeds will be sent C. O. D. Applicants must not be surprised at the return of their money, as being LIMITED the first come will be first served. TITLE PERFECT. FULL WARRANTY DEED.

Their Verdict!

First Juror—I find it the best place to purchase Christmas presents for my wife and family.

Second Juror—I find the assortment of gifts suitable for my husband and children, large and elegant.

Third Juror—I find there is no place like it to get a present for my girl—you know.

Fourth Juror—I find others can't compete with this store at all. The goods are too nice and the prices too low.

Fifth Juror—I find I am always perfectly satisfied with anything I get there.

Sixth Juror—I find I have been losing money by not dealing there.

Seventh Juror—I find their holiday stock full of pretty things, irresistable goods for ladies.

Eighth Juror—I find my grandchildren pester me to death to buy them Christmas presents at this store.

Ninth Juror—I find no one else has so many pretty things for little girls.

Tenth Juror—I find it the best place to get nice presents for the boys.

Eleventh Juror—I find the babies all crying for some of the many nice things to fill little folks' stockings.

Twelfth Juror—I find I am happy since I bought my Chris mas goods there and all other customers feel the same way.

—Last Saturday's Harrisburg Patriot contains the following item of news: Centre County is said to possesss one of the finest natural curiosities in the State. It is a cave fifteen hundred feet in length, with a water front, and more attractive in many respects than the famous Luray cavern. It has only recently been visited and explored. The cave is twenty miles from Bellefonte, easy of access, and promises to become a popular resort for curiosity seekers.

—The best selected lot of Mustache Cups in the county at Spigelmyer's, Millheim and Madisonburg.

ANOTHER ENTERPRISE FOR NEXT SPRING.—Mr. J. W. Stover will be one of the pushing men who will add another fine store house to the attractive row of business houses on Main street. It will be built on the lot at present occupied by W. J. Springer's barber shop, and will be used for a first-class general store with Mr. Stover as proprietor. John Kerstetter, Jr., has the contract for the erection of the building, and expects to get out some of the billwork this winter.

—The largest stock of all kinds of Christmas presents in the valley at Spigelmyer's, and prices the lowest.

—"A thing of beauty is a joy forever" and the large and elegant stock of writing tablets just received at Deininger's stationery store is indeed a thing of beauty. The lot comprises the cheap 5 ct. pencil tablet as well as the elegant artistic writing paper tablet. It is the largest, best and cheapest selection of tablets ever brought to town, and suitable both for commercial and professional men. Call at the Journal store and be convinced.

—Big assortment of Glassware and Toys for presents for the holidays at Spigelmyer's, Millheim and Madisonburg.

MUSIC AT AARONSBURG.—A musical convention, under the auspices of the Reformed Ladies' Mite Society will be held in the old church at Aaronsburg, beginning on the 11th of January, 1886, closing with two concerts on the following Friday and Saturday evenings. The convention will be conducted by Prof. A. N. Johnson, of Chester, N. J., a distinguished author and instructor, late of Boston. All singers from far and near are cordially invited. Membership tickets 50 cents.

—For reliable goods at reliable prices go to the reliable store of D. S. Kauffman & Co., where you can get anything you want from a pin to an overcoat, fine dress suit or a silk dress.

—Have you discovered the column advertisement of the well known grocers, Messrs. Sechler & Co., of Bellefonte, in this issue? If not, we refer you to the fourth column on the second page. A perusal of their list of goods will at once convince you that they have the best store in the county for groceries and provisions. It is hardly necessary to recommend the firm any more, as their reputation as fair dealing, wide-awake merchants has been established for years. Do not fail to call on them when in Bellefonte.

WANTED TO COMMIT SUICIDE.—An Indian boy wanted to hang himself, because a colored girl kissed him. But he didn't after all, for he found that the strange feeling in his head was caused by a bad cold. He went to D. S. Kauffman & Co's General Store, at Millheim, and selected something in their drug department that cured him in less than twenty-four hours. Always brim full of all kinds of Patent Medicines and strictly pure Drugs.

D. S. K. & Co.

—At a meeting of the commitee on arrangements for the Lutheran Sunday School entertainment on Christmas eve, at which the writer, as a reporter, had permission to be present, it was concluded to have two trees, properly decorated and loaded with gifts for the scholars. Besdes an attractive programe of responsive readings, declamations, addresses, exhibitions sutiable for the occasion, interspersed by choice music, was arranged. It promises to be a very enjoyable entertainment.

—A laudable occupation for those who are richly blessed with worldly goods, from now until Christmas, would be to hunt up the poor and needy of the community and prepare useful and relieving donations for such. This is charity in the right sense of the word. If there is one season in the year, when our hearts should be moved by the distress of others, and our hands should be open and extended for the relief of the oppressed, it is in the glorious Christmas time, the anniversary of receiving God's greatest gift, His only-begotten Son. Try to be charitable and remember the poor.

THAT PISTOL AGAIN.—Another accident, caused by the careless handling of the dangerous weapon occurred on Monday evening and this time the victim is a resident of Madisonburg. Mr. Thos. Hazel and Mr. Lewis Wolf were engaged in a discussion upon the merits of revolvers, in Bartges' hotel of said place, and the latter was experimenting with one at the time, thinking it was not loaded, when one of the chambers discharged a cartridge. The bullet penetrated Mr. Hazel's left arm at the main muscle and landed in his outside coat pocket. The wounded man was at once taken to the physician's office for proper treatment and is doing right well now. But when will people get wiser in such matters, after having had so many warnings?

OBITUARY.—Mr. Jacob Wolf, an old and respected citizen, of Aaronsburg, but who for the last six years resided with his daughter, Mrs. B. O. Deininger, of Millheim, died on Monday forenoon at eleven o'clock, after a lingering and painful sickness. For several days previous his death was momentarily expected and when it came his end was peaceful and serene. For months the patient sufferer was faithfully attended and nursed by his devoted daughter, Mrs. Deininger. Deceased was born in Haines township, December 18th, 1813, and was the son of George and Christina Wolf. He was married to Eve Stover, who preceded her husband May 25th, 1877. They had three sons and five daughters, of whom two sons and two daughters survive their deceased parents,—Mrs. Rev. I. P. Neff, Mrs. B. O. Deininger, Alfred V. Wolf and Foster S. Wolf. The subject of this notice was a strict member of the Lutheran congregation at Aaronsburg from his early youth and was an exemplary christian gentleman. While his death was no surprise to his family, it still casts the shadow of deep grief upon them and in their sorrow for a beloved and respected father the writer offers his sincere sympathy. After wondering upon life's rugged path the weary pilgrim has gone to eternal rest.

WINTER IN EARNEST.

Damage Caused by Wind and Snow in the North and West.

CHICAGO, December 5.—A severe wind-storm prevailed here and throughout the West and Northwest yesterday afternoon and last night. There was a tremendous sea along the lake shore during the night. The waves ran exceptionally high, and falling on the heavy planks of the breakwater broke them up like tinder.

Reports from many places indicate great damage by the wind. At Omaha, Neb., its velocity was estimated at sixty miles an hour. Considerable damage has been done to buildings in Omaha and vicinity, although not of a very serious nature. Trains could not cross the Union Pacific bridge for several hours on account of the wind. At Central City, Neb., the new Methodist College building was partly blown down. Farm buildings throughout Nebraska have been more or less wrecked. At St. Paul, Minn., the gale subsided during the night and this morning the weather is clear, calm and cold. The mercury marked zero at six o'clock.

Reports from various parts of Ontario state that a heavy gale is raging. Snow has fallen since last night to a depth of from six inches to four feet. All trains are more or less delayed and in some places they were completely blocked. The temperature is falling rapidly west of the lakes. At Winnipeg this morning the thermometer marked fourteen degrees below zero.

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen.

This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, originated in the South in 1828. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys and corrects the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted.

No loss of time, no interruption or stoppage of business while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Sick Stomach, a teaspoonful or more will give relief.

If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, will expel the poison and protect them from attack.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 1, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when I and others of the crew and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were bloated, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Take it by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime-juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seen man brought about by any other treatment for Scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your Sarsaparilla being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.

Respectfully yours, RALPH Y. WINGATE.

The Trooper's Experience.

Masren, Basutoland (S. Africa,) March 7, 1879.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Sarsaparilla. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called in this country "veldt-sores." I had those sores for some time. I was advised to take your Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.

Yours truly,
T. K. BODEN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

The Indian Report

An Increased Interest in Agriculture Reported From Some of the Reservations.

WASHINGTON, December 2.—The report of General J. D. C. Atkins, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the year ending June 30, 1885, shows a hopeful sign of Indian progress in the increased interest in agriculture and the preparations for increased acreage of crops on several reservations. The Commissioner recommends apportionment of lands in severalty and the sale of the remainder of the reservations for homestead entries, the money thus obtained to be put in trust for purposes of education and civilization.

There are in the United States, exclusive of Alaska, about 260,000 Indians, 64,000 being in the five civilized tribes in the Indian Territory. There are in New York 4,970; in North Carolina, 3,100, and there are some in Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and a few in California and the North-west, who are civilized, and still others who can lay some claim to civilization. Many others on the reservations have cast off the blanket and are adopting the fashions and dress of white people. But among all these, except among the Indians of New York and North Carolina, a few in some of the North western States and a part of the five civilized tribes in the Indian Territory, a very large number do not till the soil. Nearly all who are called "blanket Indians" have never tilled the soil to any extent, and fully half of the Indians of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, as yet have declined to commit themselves to the farmer's life.

Exclusive of the lands cultivated by the five civilized tribes, the number of acres in cultivation by Indians during the present year is 248,241, an increase of 18,473 acres over last year's figures. Reports of the Indian Agents at agencies where courts for trial of Indian offenses have been established show that they have been entirely successful and in many cases eminently useful. Referring to Indian police the Commissioner says: To a great extent they have met the necessities of the situation and have proved valuable aids to the Indian Agents in preventing trespassing and robbery by lawless whites and in suppressing disorder, violence and incipient revolt among the most restless of their own people. Many instances of surprising fidelity to the trust imposed upon them, under circumstances which would swerve many a white man from his duty, might be related of these Indian policemen.

A Borealis Story.

The place was the old Warsaw Campground in Milton County, Ga. The time recently. A large and seriously attentive congregation had assembled for the night service, the negroes in the rear of the pulpit, as was the custome in those days before the war. The preacher was a talented young man, at that time stationed in Marietta. He had reached a point in his sermon at which he held the almost undivided attention of the vast audience, and perfect quiet reigned. Just at this moment, when the interest was most intense, an old negro women hopped over into the altar, right in front of the preacher, and shrilly cried out: "Halle-lujah! the judgment day am come!" Her joyful exclamation caused the crowd to look out from under the arbor, and sure enough, there was a striking and magnificent spectacle.

The Northern heavens were lit up by a gorgeous aurora. Not many in that crowd understood the phenomenon, which, in fact, is rarely observable from Southern latitudes. And not understanding, many concluded that the old auntie's explanation was the true one. "Ah! then there was hurrying to and fro, and gathering tears, and tremblings of distress." Indeed, so great was the commotion that there was imminent danger of a stampede and that somebody would be crushed in the swaying crowd.

It was at this crisis a well-known preacher, tall and angular, and with the voice of a stentor, ran out and mounted a convenient stump. "Be calm, my friends," he shouted, "be calm. This is not the judgment day, for how could the judgment day come in the night?" The incongruity struck the people with soothing force, their ears subsided, the preacher finished his sermon, and "order reigned in Warsaw."

AFTER DINNER.

Persons who suffer from Indigestion can arrest the progress of that painful malady by the use of an after-dinner pill, so composed that it will give tone to the stomach, prevent heartburn, rouse the liver to healthful action, invigorate the kidneys, and thus, through the activity of these organs, promote the natural movement of the stomach and bowels. AYER'S PILLS are so compounded that their action, though mild, effectually produces the above results. They also, in curing Constipation, remove the cause of Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Kidney Disease, Rheumatism, and many other serious ailments.

AYER'S PILLS

contain no mineral nor poisonous substance, and do not gripe unless the bowels are irritated, and even then their influence is healing. To continue their effect in constipated or chronic cases, they need only be taken in diminishing instead of increasing doses. For seamen, and inhabitants or travelers in sparsely settled countries where physicians are not at hand, they are of inestimable value. There is hardly a sickness they will not alleviate, and in most cases cure, if taken promptly. To young girls just entering upon womanhood, and to women whose period of maternity is drawing to a close, Ayer's Pills, in moderate doses, merely sufficient to ensure regular action of the bowels, will be found of Incalculable Value.
